Columbia Sussex's new $150 million headquarters is nearing completion in Crestview Hills.

Paul Hemmer Cos. is building the eye-catching, eight-story tower that will be occupied by the casino and hotel operator whose affiliate, Columbia Entertainment, this year acquired Aztar Corp., with its Tropicana properties in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, N.J.

The tower, near Thomas More Parkway on Centre View Boulevard just south of Interstate 275, is 141 feet tall.

The building should be finished this fall and will have about 100,000 square feet, compared to the 30,000-square-foot Columbia Sussex headquarters on Grandview Drive in Fort Mitchell.

City officials have been told that 200 to 250 employees will occupy the building. The company delayed moving numerous employees into Northern Kentucky because of space limitations.

Columbia Sussex and its affiliates ranked No. 2 on the Cincinnati USA/Deloitte 2006 list of the largest privately-held businesses in Greater Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky, with 2005 revenues of $1.04 billion. The ranking didn't reflect the impact of its $2.8

billion acquisition in January of Aztar Corp., a Phoenix company with casinos in Las Vegas and Atlantic City.

When it moves, the company plans to run a steam-engine train, about one-sixth the size of a regular train, around its new 38-acre complex.

Columbia Sussex owner Bill Yung "enjoys trains, and I think he is going to allow for charities to use it on weekends," Crestview Hills Mayor Paul Meier said last spring. "That should be interesting."
